

A method of parsing a markup language document comprising syntactic elements is disclosed, said method comprising, for one of said syntactic elements, the steps of identifying (310) a type of the element, processing (318) the element by 10 determining a hash representation thereof if said type is a first type, and augmenting (314) an at least partial structural representation of the document using the hash representation if said type is said first type.